Re: Queens County Bar Association Law School Student
Ambassador Program for 2Ls and 3Ls

The Student Ambassador position at the Queens County Bar Association (QCBA) provides an opportunity for law students to take a leadership role within the QCBA.

This is an excellent position for any law student ready to jump-start his/her career and gain visibility while developing a strong professional network in an association that includes attorneys, judges, referees, law secretaries and other professionals working within the legal field.

The role of the Student Ambassador is to represent the Queens County Bar Association by communicating the benefits of membership, promoting relevant events, increasing student engagement, and recruiting new members.

We are offering Ambassadorships to a maximum of two students from all of the law schools in New York State including each of the following law schools: St. John's University Law School, Touro Law School, CUNY Law School, Brooklyn Law School, and New York Law School.

The Student Ambassador from each school will be placed on the Young Lawyers Committee, where they will advise the Queens County Bar Association on how to best serve law students as well as contribute to the planning of programs on topics ranging from how to manage a job search to non-traditional careers for attorneys.

Through its programs and networking receptions, the Young Lawyers Committee provides law students with valuable opportunities to network and develop relationships with practicing attorneys.

For continuity, we are recommending there be a 2L and 3L Student Ambassador at each school. Ambassadorships are not open to first year law students.

OVER 141 YEARS OF DEDICATED SERVICE

The Student Ambassador is expected to attend no less than two QCBA Stated Meetings or other QCBA events per academic year.
